Agard for the administrator. This is the case that had been in the Westerly probate court for more than a year, when two alleged wills of Mary J. Crandall were submitted for probate. It was claimed that the second will, which Mrs. Netherwood presented, having found the document after she had submitted the first will, was the latest and the proper one to be probated. Administrator Davis stated probated. Administrator Davis stated the proper one to be probated. Administrator Davis stated the speed in the speed limit being fifprobated. Administrator Davis stated that the second will was a forgery.

After several hearings Judge Edward M. Burke of the probate court admitted the first will. From this judgment appeal was taken to the superior court and the action of the probate court was upheld. Then followed the motion for a new trial, and the arguments were made before Judge Blodgett. The judge said it was the most remarkable case he had tried and that he was inclined to grant the motion for a new trial, but could not Judge Blodgett. The judge said it was the most remarkable case he had tried and that he was inclined to grant the motion for a new trial, but could not on the evidence given when the case was on trial in the superior court. Breed Theatre.

The Yankee Princess, the Bessie Love picture which will be seen at the Breed theatre today and Saturday gives the Vitagraph star one of the best roles of her screen carcer, in which she displays her rare versatility. She has a supporting cast of unusual strength and balance. Miss Love, as Patsy O'Reilly, is first the terror of snobbish girls at a finishing school after her father has made his millions. She is a fighting O'Reilly at all times, and when disaster confronts the family because her father has bought a family tree to gain entrance into society it is Patsy who has bought a family tree to gain entrance into society it is Patsy who gets him out of his dilemma and incidentally saves herself from the clutches of a bogus lord. The story is adapted from Princess Patsy, by Bernard McConville. William Desmond will also be seen in A Sage Brush Hamlet, a rollicking comedy drama with a wijdwestern background, and the Patke News will complete the bill for tomorrow and Saturday.
